**** This year will look very different, especially at the beginning; possibly longer than that. We will do the best we can to maintain our rigor no matter what format we are using. Spanish III honors students, along with their teacher, are expected to participate fully to the best of their ability in these endeavors, and as enthusiastically as possible, no matter what the environment. Here are some very important things to remember, especially as we get started:

Hybrid Schedule info:

Make sure you know which cohort you are in, “A” or “B,” and that you show up in-person on the correct days. Look at the Schedule below. We will be distanced in the classroom, but we will still be able to practice speaking, etc, in pairs or groups-- you will just have to maintain distance. Masks will be worn in the classroom.

When will students be attending class?
When will students be working on their DL assignments?

Monday “Zoom” day info:

On Mondays (except the first week, when we will do this on Friday), you will log on to my Zoom call at your regular class time. The Zoom Meeting ID is 705 104 4007 and the Passcode is 321. You also have the link: <https://zoom.us/j/> information is also in Schoology,

We will discuss Zoom norms in class, but you are expected to be up and dressed and to participate in whatever function I ask of you, with your video camera on during the whole session.

“Distance Learning” Days

You are considered “Distance Learning” on the 2 days of the week you are not physically present in class. For these days, you will have assignments in the white “Weekly Virtual Folders” section. For each week you have assignments that are intended to be things you can do independently-- frequently it might be grammar review, listening assignments, watching a video (that we will discuss in class), etc. You should always go to Schoology and look for these and keep yourself organized. These will be due at the day and time indicated on the assignment, so make sure and notice that first.

You will NOT zoom with me on the two days the other cohort is present (other teachers may have other rules for this day).

Monday, August 17, if you are not in front of me, you have assignments to do-- review this class syllabus and submit your student info card, and go to the VHL site and try to sign up for the textbook we are using.

This is a weird year. I’m not 100% sure what this will all look like, but I have every confidence that we can be successful no matter what platform or situation we find ourselves using. I will be here to support you in whatever way I need to be. My goal is to make this class as enjoyable as possible for you and to make you feel engaged and involved this year, whether we are all together in class or Zoom-ing together for class. Learning a foreign language is an exciting and fun prospect, as is learning about other cultures and peoples. I hope to prepare you to use your language in real-life situations and perhaps even to encourage you to consider international travel as an additional way to extend your knowledge of this language. I am looking forward to the year with you and am committed to making this year meaningful and beneficial for you. I hope you are excited about this class as well!
